

First World War Roll of Honour

The following members of Bedford Modern School lost their lives during the Great War. They are commemorated on the School's War Memorial, which was unveiled in 1923 in the Memorial Hall of the School's Harpur Street building, and in the Roll of Honour, published in The Eagle, December 1923. A second memorial plaque was added at a later date to include additional names missing from the original memorial. When the School moved to new premises in Manton Lane in 1974 the memorial tablets were removed and now hang on the wall in Memorial Court.

The Roll of Honour has been compiled using sources in the School's Archives and the records of the Commonwealth War Graves Commission, including details of where individuals are buried or commemorated and date and area of death (in italics), where known.

In memory of 'the Old Boys of this School who, as in duty bound, laid down their lives in a great cause':

First World War Roll of Honour

* Due to the lack of contemporary detailed sources, some assumptions have had to be made in cross-referencing the names on the School's Roll of Honour and Memorial with records of the Commonwealth War Graves Commission.

† Included on the WWI Memorial but not in the printed Roll of Honour produced afterwards. A George Phipps, aged 22, died in March 1917 according to the Commonwealth War Graves Commission, but his age does not correlate with the BMS Phipps.

++ 'R' Shelton on memorial and printed Roll of Honour, but BMS dates and service details in the latter suggest this was actually Kenneth Shelton (1909-10), Royal Flying Corps, attached to the 3rd Bn, East Kent Regiment.
